

The Valley: Book 2: Beyond the Valley

Id like to take this time to talk about this type book. Most of us who read and write SHTF stuff kind of believe deep down that it could and very well may happen. A lot of us are preppers- I am and have been for forty years. Most everything Ive written deals with an event that knocks the wheels off the world such as an EMP. I wrote the first Valley book about an economic collapse, and I know less about that subject than an EMP (which aint a lot). But after the first one, I realized that while the world might be burning down in the cities, that didnt mean that all of civilization came to a grinding halt. The military would still be the big dog on the block and I wondered how a story would play out if the military were to get involved in a big way? Im still not sure, but Im going to try to put it together in a way that might be close to the real thing. I guess it will depend on my reading public if its an idea that folks like.
