Not illustrated. 1902 edition. Excerpt: ...to propagate from cuttings than other Roses, and is to be found in only one nurseryman's list, but I am glad to say its merit has been recognised, and a stock of it will, I believe, soon again be obtainable. To my fancy it is far preferable to the deeper coloured Reine Marie Henriette, so very common all along the Riviera, and which in December, mingling with Reve dOr, has a great charm, even if it be not the very best of all. R. La Grifferaie, which we seem only to know as a stock for other Roses, is a very brilliant and luxuriant climber in late spring, intensely bright pink in its clusters. The growth and foliage of this Rose are prodigious, and it requires a large space to do itself justice; were it perpetual it would rank as one of the best. Waltham Climber No. 3 shows to great advantage on this coast. Its long strong shoots are clothed with its scarlet-crimson flowers early in spring, and give a fair sprinkling of blooms continuously during winter when grown on a sunny pergola. No mention has been made of Gloire de Dijon and its many seedlings, for they do not show to as great advantage as in more northern gardens. Belle Lyonnaise is fairly good, but there is one of more modern date, Duchesse dAuerstadt, which proves the exception to the rule, and is most excellent in every way. From its growth it is evidently from Reve dOr on one side, and is quite the finest, freest, and best of all golden-yellow Tea Roses of climbing habit. It will no doubt entirely displace Reve dOr, being its superior in every way, and this, to those who know that old Rose on this coast, is saying much. Noisette Roses.--After Lamarque, which has already received its due notice, Jaune Desprez must be mentioned on account of its perfume and beauty in spring....
